The Lineage
of
John Peter Clover

1963

This is an attempt to record what we know of our Clover family. It is not a complete genealogy, and there is probably much more material available if we were to search state and county records in many areas. But thanks to Florence Huston Bashline and Mina Clover, who furnished most of the data, Mr. Burnham, who is a descendant of John Clover, son of Philip, our Revolutionary ancestor, Hazel Clover, Cade Clover and many others who supplied data for their families, there is this material which I wish to pass on to my own family and to you.

Most of our early history is from the record in the bible of Gamaliel Clover, Sr., son of Philip, who was a local Methodist preacher.

Since I am a new-comer in this field, with the help of Mr. Burnham's data, I decided on a way to record our lineage that seemed most understandable to me. By referring to the number opposite a person's name it is easy to trace both his ancestors and descendants.

It has been a great pleasure to meet so many of you through this means, some for the first time, and I hope to hear more of all of you.

My deepest gratitude goes to all who have helped in any way to supply the data, and a fond hope that some of our children will be interested in delving deeper and carrying on.

With every good wish to all.

Sincerely,

Mary Clover Kishler

4. PHILIP CLOVER, from whom we are descended, was born June 12, 1758 in Sussex Co., N. J., died May 19, 1830 in Clarion Co., Pa. In 1782 he married Mary Cooper, born in 1756 in Sussex Co., N. J. by one record, another says born in Scotland. She died in Aug. 1842, and both are interred in Cecedar Cemetery, Mechanicsville, Pa.

Mary Cooper was of the family of Sir Astley Paston Cooper, the noted English surgeon. Of him, the Encyclopedia Americana says in part: b. Brooke Hall, Norfolk, 23 Aug. 1768, d. London 12 Feb. 1841. He studied medicine in Edinburgh and London, attended lectures in Paris. In 1821 he was created a baronet after performing slight surgery on King George IV. After many honors, was elected president of College of Surgeons in 1827. He was the first to attempt the tying of the carotid artery and the aorta.

Philip Clover's war record follows: He served as a Private in the Revolutionary Army in the Cumberland Co., Pa. Militia, in the Company of Capt. Robert Means. (See Pennsylvania Archives, 5th Series, Volume 6). On page 652 he is shown in a scouting party in Aug. and Oct. of 1782 with John and Samuel Frampton and Arthur Bell. His national number is 181408. The said Philip Clover is the ancestor who assisted in establishing American Independence while acting in the capacity of Private in the Cumberland Co., Pa. Militia. Verified by National Number 330444. (Mr. Burnham's account adds that he served in the 7th Company, 8th Battalion, under Col. Alexander Brown.)
