PROGRAM

I.

Ah! Non Creda from "La Sonnambula" ..... Bellini

I did not expect to see you fade so soon, oh flowers. You passed like love which lasted only a day. I cannot hold the pain any longer which lasted only for a day. Possibly new vigor my tears can give you, but to revive love my tears cannot.

Ah! Non Giunge from "La Sonnambula" ..... Bellini

A human thought does not convey how sure of happiness I was as soon as you confided in me of love. Embrace me always. Together on the earth in which we live, we will form a Heaven of love.

Solvejg's Song ..... Edvard Grieg

Winter may wane and summer go by. The summer, too, may vanish—the year may die. But you will return to me one day, I know, and here I'll wait for you faithfully. Ah . . .

Ein Schwan ..... Edvard Grieg

My swan with beautiful white plumage your song never revealing — The elves were anxious as you glided away — listening all around: yet you deceived me at parting I was overcome — for then you sang! And your soul left this earth like your song. But were you then only a swan — were you?

Ein Traum ..... Edvard Grieg

I dreamt a beautiful dream — I loved a blonde maiden. It was in the green wood in the spring — we were united in joyous bliss! I held thee fast! I shall never leave thee — never, never! Ah green woodland, through life thou art ever dear to me. There reality was like a dream — there the dream became a reality.

Un Bel Di Vedremo from "Madama Butterfly" ..... Puccini

Butterfly tells the nursemaid, Suzuki, how happy she is knowing one day he will come back to her. How the little ship will appear in the harbor and how he will call to her. How she will hide herself from him to tease him a bit but really to keep herself from dying of joy when she sees him again. One senses a note of fear in her assurance that he will come back but she protests that nothing will dissuade her in her belief that he will return.

"Summer Time" - Porgy and Bess

INTERMISSION — 15 Minutes

V.

Apres un Reve ..... Gabriel Faure

I dreamed of your wonderful face — you were radiant as a sunset. You called me and I left the earth, seemingly on wings, to fly with you towards the light of the skies. Alas, alas, I woke — I called — Oh; night, bring back to me the dream!

L'Eventail ..... J. Massenet

Lovely precious family jewel, Grandmother's fan — Tell me, lovely fan, what would you say if you could speak? Ah . . . what tender confidences — what sweet secrets, what promises perhaps betrayed. The scent of dead romance is still in the folds of the lovely fan of grandmother's. Beautiful fan, what would you tell if you could speak!

Le Miroir ..... Gustave Ferrari

The sweet scent of you floats all around in the silence! I saw the empty room; the table; the open book, where you left it still breathing your last thoughts; the mirror which shimmered like a bit of Heaven. Alone, I moved towards these things and very reverently placed the mirrior to my lips and kissed the image of your eyes.

Ariette ..... Paul Vidal

If I were a sunbeam, young maiden, I'd shed my brilliant rays all around you — If I were a zephyr I'd caress your golden tresses — If I were perfume I'd find the tiny corner of your dear mouth and there leave a kiss! If I were love, I'd live in your soul — in your heart — reminding you that I am your victorious lover.
